

No matter how well you think you know a place, there are always new aspects to discover.

Use the treasure map to discover more of Sedbergh.

✿ This symbol shows places of interest: it could be anything beautiful, quirky, historic, or fun...

Like all the best treasure maps, this one may hold a few mysteries. It's not drawn to scale and some of the features might not be exactly where you'd expect. Look carefully to find everything!

The Tourist Information Centre offers help for visitors.

Please support friendly local businesses, cafes, pubs and shops. Many will be able to suggest where to find these treasures.

How many of these can you discover?

- Exhibitions, looms and shops inside Farfield Mill
- Remains of the motte and bailey castle at Castlehaw
- Embroidery panels depicting Sedbergh's history at St. Andrew's Church
- Bookshops - Sedbergh is England's Book Town
- 'Loose cannons' lying around the ginnels and alleyways
- Unusual stained-glass windows depicting nature scenes at St. Gregory's Church
- Shops, cafes and pubs along Finkle Street & Main Street
- Former weavers' cottages and weavers' gallery in Railton Yard

Nearby:

- Brigflatts, one of the most famous and beautiful Quaker meeting houses
- Cautley Spout, claimed as England's highest cascading waterfall
- Fox's Pulpit at Shacklabank, from the bottom of Black Horse Hill
- The Temperance pub with no beers or alcohol: The Cross Keys Inn at Cautley (though visitors are welcome to bring their own!)
